- teacher training in the field of specialist languages.

The second theme concerns specialist translatology and it covers the following:

- problems related to the translation of specialist texts,
- tools used in the translation of specialist texts,
- methods enhancing the process of translation,
- the development of databases and comparison of specialist terminology,
- the extra-linguistic knowledge of the translator and the development of his competences.

The third theme refers to linguistic studies in:

- types of specialist languages and attempts to define them,
- comparative studies in the field of specialist languages, including the comparative analyses of the specialist languages and general language,
- corpus studies, discourse analysis and issues related to the syntax, semantics and stylistics of specialist languages,
- genre-specific features of specialist languages,
- specialist languages and the theory of general communication.

If you are interested in presenting a paper, submit an abstract (200-350 words) in English or in Polish.
